

The Hidden Messages in Water* by Dr Masaru Emoto

Richard Sears (4 February 2014)

This is a piece of revolutionary work by an eminent Japanese scientist who found that by freezing water exposed to different thoughts, conditions and music etc., the frozen water crystals exhibit a corresponding 'beauty' or 'ugliness' in their formation when photographed.

For example, the book shows photos of beautiful snowflake-like crystals when exposed to Beethoven and Mozart, and disjointed and malformed ones when exposed to Heavy Metal. The same applies with words written on the container such as 'love & gratitude' compared to 'you fool', and water placed in front of computers, differing TV shows, micro-waved water etc.

Dr Emoto, explaining that we are largely made of water, links his earlier scientific research on wave fluctuation to his ideas on the interconnectedness of matter, and of vibrational energy existing throughout the universe.

On reading this book I find several parallels with dowsing, such as resonance theories, morphic fields, differing energy from rain or foul water, and energy in general radiating from water. He quotes that in Japan water rising up from the ground was considered sacred and of high energy, and found it also emits energy above and below the underground source.

Certainly well worth a read. Obtainable from Amazon etc.
